THE PROBLEM OF THE SMALL TOWN

"What makes a small town, or rather why does a small town remain a small town?" This query was addressed today to one of Antioch's prominent business men by a representative of the Antioch News, who was somewhat astounded to hear the business man's prompt but brief answer, "Small people."

Hard words, those, but do they not start a train of thought that should lead to a frank and helpful self-analysis?

Asked to elucidate upon his laconic expression, the business man did so with no hesitancy. All large, progressive towns, he said, were once small towns. What made them grow into well-planned, well-organized centers of population? Did they just grow up unguided and in haphazard manner such as were built in the new found gold fields or oil producing areas, which were destined to become "ghost towns" when the natural resource dwindled? They did not.

The well-ordered city of today will be found to have had not only an advantage in the matter of strategic location, or some natural resource, but it has had also the guiding influence of some civic spirited group, such as a chamber of commerce or other organization, the members of which have pooled their efforts to improve the community they selected as their home and the place of their business or professional activity.

The truth of this statement is attested by the facts as related to the progress being made by any growing town. The cities along the North Shore of Lake Michigan are outstanding examples. Waukegan, Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee all have potentially the same natural advantages, and all are showing progress even in spite of the depression. All have live chambers of commerce vying with one another and creating the element of competition that has come to be recognized as an essential to healthy progress in trade.

Today's competition is not between individuals or firms in the same town, but is between whole communities. It matters little whether the stranger within our gates spends his dollar with Smith, Jones or Robinson, so long as he leaves his dollar and his good will in the community. "Small people" and unthinking merchants are those who will send a customer out of town rather than see him visit a so-called rival establishment across the street. Petty jealousies and unfair competitive business methods never promoted the general welfare of any community, whereas, whole-hearted and intelligent co-operation has built many thriving cities that had less to start with than has Antioch.

Present day statistics tell us that only one small town in ten is actually making a progress; the other nine are either at a standstill for the present, or are actually going backward.

Antioch needs an active chamber of commerce. The town enjoys the unique advantage of being the hub of the lake region of Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin. What are we going to do about it?

A chamber of commerce with a nearly 100 per cent membership among the business and professional interests will answer that question in terms of community growth and progress if given a chance to act.

FOOD BUDGET IS ONE OF HOMEMAKER'S FOREMOST PROBLEMS

Day's Menu Should Include Milk, Vegetables, Fruit, Cereals, Meat, Fat

One standard New Year's resolution is to swear to keep within a budget for the year. So much for this, so much for that. The housewife's chief budgeting is concerned with her food expenditure.

There's not only the expenditure to be considered, however, but how to obtain the best and most nourishing results at little cost.

The day's menu should include if possible:

Milk—one quart for each child; one pint for each adult, including milk used in preparing cooked foods. Vegetables—a serving of one raw and one cooked vegetable.

Fruits—Two daily, one of them citrus.

Cereals—two, including bread; one whole-grained.

Meat and meat substitute—meat, cheese, fish, eggs, beans, lentils. Fat—such as butter, cream, or vegetable oils.

Water eight glasses. Food authorities advise dividing the food money into fifths, as follows: 1. Vegetables and fruit; 2. Milk and cheese; 3. Meats, fish or eggs; 4. Bread and cereals; 5. Fats, sugar and other groceries.

Another classification calls for one-fourth of the amount for milk products, and less than one-sixth for meats, poultry and fish.

Among the best ways of cutting down on food expenditure is to buy fruits and vegetables in season, buy bulk goods, in large quantities if possible; use dried fruits and vegetables when you can; uncooked cereals; cheaper cuts of meat, and the less expensive canned goods.

Among the more inexpensive cuts of meat and fish are foreshank, flank, brisket, liver (beef) tongue, heart, hindshank, dried beef, rump, shoulder cuts, neck cuts, cod and salmon (canned).

A list of the fruits and vegetables in season will follow in an early issue.

High, Elaborately Curled Ceffures Are Now a Vogue

Movie Stars and Society Women Acclaim This Sophistication

While most of us still cling to the rather long bob with varying types of end curls or rolls, certain movie stars, if you have observed, are setting the mode for elaborate curled ceffures 'way up on the back of the head.

As a necessary result of this trend, parts are continued far down the back of the head, to enable the dressers to curl the back hair in waves of tiny puffs. Not a single left strand escapes being curled and above the neckline.

The front of the head avoids frizzled locks, or elaborate arrangement to detract from the effect of the back, or to interfere with any ribbon or diadem which may worn.

Bangs are struggling to return, but they fail to carry the rest of the hair downward toward the front. They are accompanied by the swirl, or are cut sparingly in wisps or fluffy bits to soften the simplicity of front line. This tier-on-tier of rolls and curls in the back is striking on some persons, while on others it simply jars with their entire appearance and personality. It's for you to decide, of course.

The extreme ceffures are decidedly sophisticated, and are not appropriate except for evening when accompanied by dazzling glad rags.

Savory Pork Dish

A good cold-weather dish is pork chops, but here is a novel way to prepare them. Place seven pork chops in three quarts of cold water. Let them boil slowly for half an hour, then add one and one-half packages of macaroni broken in small pieces. Cook until the macaroni is tender, and salt and pepper to taste.

It is estimated there are 50,000 earthworms in an acre of land, and if it weren't for the earthworms there would be no vegetation and man and other animals would perish.

According to the figures, you have had more than 74,500 direct ancestors. Tell this to anybody who offers to trace your ancestral tree back.

Before the advent of rubber, bread crumbs were used to erase pencil marks.

January is the worst month for flu and colds, a fact which is not generally known.

Don't Buy Bulk! Buy HEAT—and save money on your fuel costs

Fuel bulk is not heat! The heat a fuel is able to produce comes from burnable elements in the fuel. With ordinary fuels, much of the bulk is sheer waste—for it will not burn. If you burn Waukegan Koppers Coke, you get more heat with fewer tons! For here is a fuel that is almost all carbon—the heat producing substance. The few ashes left by Waukegan Koppers Coke are proof of its complete burning quality. It leaves only a small part of the ashes left by ordinary fuels. Waukegan Koppers Coke not only eliminates waste—but it makes no dust, smoke or soot—is easy to regulate—needs less attention. Ask your fuel dealer to send you a trial load. You'll find it heats your home more efficiently—and economically.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Christ Jesus" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, on Sunday, December 31.

The Golden Text was, "Thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel, whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting" (Isaiah 5:2).

Among the citations which composed the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Then he Jesus again unto them, saying, In the light of the world: he that floweth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus represented Christ, the true Christ, who presents the perfect man, whom Spirit creates and governs. Christ blends with God, who gives him the earth" (p. 10).

Grandma's Rocker

Here, kitty, what you nosin' around on that table for? Oh, he wants to see my picture. I was so tickled when the children gave me that picture—there couldn't have been anything nicer. Seems like I can't get enough of looking at it—something new to see about somebody every time.

Ten of them. Come to think about it, ten's a mighty small number of descendants for a woman of seventy-six—and only eight of them real blood relations. Only ten! Humph. Well, guess I'm modern, anyways—they do say it's not stylish to have big families anymore.

I had five children, and raised four of them hale and hearty. None of mine have done as well—yet. 'Course, John and Blanche have three—Jack, Nancy, and Kenny—but Gladys and Henry only have young Harry—and Emily and Walter aren't even married yet. There's still time, though it does seem's they're takin' their time about it.

Emily'll be thirty her next birthday, and Walter's thirty-five—almost a confirmed bachelor, you might say. I been tryin' for ten years now to get him to bring his girl home for Christmas, but he claims he hasn't any. Fiddlesticks—he's got one, all right. If he's any son of mine. Maybe she doesn't like to come clear from Cincinnati, 'specially on Christmas. Still, as I say, there's hope yet. John was thirty-one before he and Blanche decided to set up housekeeping, and Gladys was twenty-seven—same age I was, but then I did an-ways hold—

Well, here I am ramblin' on 'bout nothin', when I ought to be layin' these presents away. This dress goods from Sister Jane will come in handy later on—wish she could have come.

Gladys said that Jimmy next door was tickled at those mittens I knitted him, and Dora's two youngest came up yesterday to thank me—they really needed them, poor little mites. Here, Furr-boy, we'll finish this some other time. I ought to be thinking about makin' a New Year's resolution, but I'm getting drowsy. Happy New Year!

Miss Margaret Drom returned to her teaching duties at Polo, Ill., Thursday, after spending the Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallie Drom.

New Year's day guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Bartlett and family were Mr. and Mrs. William Johns and son, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. William Fredericks, and two sons, Villa Park, Ill.

Millburn Defeats Gurnee In Basketball By One Free Throw

The Millburn lads were victorious in the basketball game played with a Gurnee town team at the high school Tuesday, January 2, winning by one free throw, 19-18. Millburn made a fast start, and were leading at the close of the half, 13-6. Peterson scored five baskets on easy closeup shots.

Gurnee returned fire in the second half, and gained the lead, until with four more minutes of play, the score stood 16-13 in Gurnee's favor. Millburn succeeded in tying the score, after which each team made two points, again tying. With one minute to go, Peterson and Lewin got tangled up and each was given a free throw on technical fouls, Peterson making his try to win the game for Millburn, 19-18.
